Our North American Studio illustrates our bold, forward-thinking approach to workplace design. Located within The Well in downtown Toronto the accessible two-storey studio fosters a dynamic environment that nurtures collaboration.

Our office sets a precedent for the people-centric and innovative spaces we create for our clients, demonstrating how thoughtful design can improve productivity and workplace culture. The studio is structured around the concept of 'Neighbourhoods,' offering a wide range of flexible solutions for our diverse teams. Our office ecosystem accommodates various work styles, featuring dedicated zones for deep concentration, dynamic team collaboration, and vibrant social interactions. As Associate and Senior Interior Designer Andrea McCann and Principal Caroline Robbie describe, the space is designed to allow growth and adaptability:

"The clever use of character, lighting, views, and structure creates a range of environments focused on collaboration, comfort, and well-being—allowing the new studio to truly deliver on a '1 + 1 = 3' philosophy."

We've integrated state-of-the-art technology within a wellness-centric workplace, creating an environment that balances functionality and comfort, essential for forward-thinking businesses seeking to cultivate an engaged spirit within their teams.

Designed for flexibility and growth, the studio layout promotes spontaneous interactions while providing designated zones for focused work. The studio entrance acts as an inviting central hub, connecting the various boardrooms and meeting spaces to facilitate efficient collaboration and fluid movement throughout the office.

Our workplace design artfully blends strategic layouts with organic zoning, enhanced by cutting-edge furniture systems. Acoustically treated rooms and modularity allow for easy customizations, while smart booking systems, advanced AV setups, and sit-stand desks enhance functionality alongside biophilic elements. A standout feature, the Oasis, invites employees to recharge, whether by taking in expansive views or relaxing in a quiet nook. As McCann and Robbie note, "In one corner of the office called the Oasis, employees can grab a book, lounge on a sofa, or just stop to take in the sweeping views of Lake Ontario. In another, they might find a dark space for deep focused work."

Our studio serves as a living lab for design innovation, where we continually test and refine design concepts. This hands-on methodology empowers us to sculpt bespoke, tailored, high-performance spaces that evolve in tandem with the evolving landscape of modern work environments.

Through hands-on design experimentation in our own workspace, we forge innovative solutions that not only meet but redefine the benchmarks for workplace interior design. Our studio embodies our expertise, serving as a living portfolio of our capabilities. It showcases our ability to reimagine spaces, revitalize brand identities, and craft dynamic, collaborative environments that spark creativity and nurture team performance.
